Department Of Family Medicine News:

Congratulations to DFM's Dr. Andrea Nederveld, director of PEACHnet, Partners Engaged in Achieving Change in Health (a Colorado western slope practice-based research network).

Nederveld recently took part in a podcast from the University of California San Francisco's Social Interventions Research and Evaluation Network (SIREN).

Implementation Research on Social Screening is about implementing needs screening in health care settings. In the podcast, Nederveld discusses what her PEACHnet team has learned in western Colorado and future directions for research.

Click on the button below to listen to the podcast. It is the 5th one in the list of podcasts on the page.

DFM's Dr. Don Nease is recently back from a trip to Brussels, Belgium, where he had the happy honor of presenting the student awards in the opening session of the International Balint Conference.

The awards were for the Ascona Prize - which is an essay contest that invites medical students to submit a story about an experience with a patient. They are asked to tell the story and reflect on how they handled the unique nuances of the interaction.

The essays are memorialized in a book published to showcase the winners and to give others the opportunity to learn from their experiences.

Dr. Cleveland Piggott was the winner of last summer's visual abstract raffle. This is the final version of his Diversity, Inclusion, and Health Equity (DIHE) in Academic Medicine visual abstract.

How would you like to have something like this produced - free of charge - for your project, program, or publication?

Stay tuned for details on this Fall's visual abstract raffle details. You could be the lucky winner!

DO PUPPIES MAKE YOU HAPPY?

I don't have any puppies, but I am interested in what makes employees in the DFM happy! I am seeking DFM employees who would be willing to participate in a 30-45 minute Zoom interview to discuss department level policies and practices that effect employee wellbeing. I am a current student at the Colorado School of Public Health conducting a capstone project this semester with the DFM Diversity and Health Equity Program.

The creative click-bait above is from Charlotte Cohen, a current student with the Colorado School of Public Health.

Working in conjunction with DFM's Diversity and Health Equity Program, Charlotte would like to hear from you about wellbeing.

For more information, reach out to Charlotte at charlotte.cohen@cuanschutz.edu.

Marathon Achievement:

Congratulations to Kelli Giacomini (pictured above) for successfully competing the Equinox Fall Marathon near Fort Collins. Of her experience, Giacomini says, "I finished just over the 4 hour mark. Here is the synopsis: A point-to-point, mostly downhill, race course running through the Buckhorn & Poudre River Canyons, finishing in a valley at the base of the mountains. The first 5 miles were pretty brutally uphill, and the last 21 mostly downhill. I've been wanting to complete a marathon for a while and just picked this one on the race calendar – the next one I choose will hopefully have less hills to contend with."

To Carlee Kriesel:

"Carlee, Thanks for jumping in to help develop our needs assessment tool for ENCORE. It's kept us on track when no one else could help!"

To Taryn Bogdewiecz:

"Taryn, Thank you for stepping up and keeping our ENCORE project running these last few months - Couldn't have done it without you!"

Visit Way To Go on the DFM intranet to read the submissions or to leave your own.

Just click on the button below to make your way to the DFM intranet home page. Scroll down past Myra's message and leave a nice message for the person that you wish to celebrate.

Remember, the intranet is behind the University firewall, so you will have to either connect via DUP Global Protect or be on campus and logged into the system to access the intranet.**
